A young woman (with a large dog)

hunting among the leaves finally picks up something and deposits it in a plastic bag.

Did she actually uncover it, or attempt to convince me she did?

Is it poopy, then, or phantom poopy?
Scoff if you must, but in a way, it’s the controlling question of our era.